MEANDERED WATER AND GOVERNMENT LOTS

Meandered water is a lake or stream which is located on acreage for which the landowner pays taxes on the land only - commonly called government lots. The original government survey of your county is located in your courthouse and includes the location, acreage and lot number of each such tract of land.

The government lot number assigned to a parcel of land is the legal description of that land.....How can you tell if water on a piece of property is meandered or privately owned?

On the township maps in this book, if a body of water is adjoining government lots, that water is meandered. If there are no government lots next to the body of water, the water is privately owned. That is, the owner is paying taxes on the land underneath the water and consequently owns the water and control to all fishing, hunting, trapping and/or other recreational rights of usage, within the specific guidelines of State and Federal law. (Other rules may apply if the water is deemed navigable.)

As a general rule, meandered water is public water which may be used for recreational purposes - IF THE PUBLIC CAN ACCESS IT WITHOUT TRESPASSING. However, there is currently much litigation going on at all levels of the court system concerning the hunting and fishing rights, etc. of such waters.
